

FREQUENTLY ASKED QUESTIONS

What is the Endocannabinoid System?

Discovered only a few decades ago, the endocannabinoid system (ECS) is one of the most important physiological systems in our body. It consists of a group of naturally produced compounds called cannabinoids, as well as the receptors to which they bind. The receptors are found throughout the body in the brain, organs, glands, connective tissue, immune cells and they impact appetite, memory, metabolism, sleep, stress, and immune response.

OXZGEN CBD oil products support our body's ECS and help it to maintain proper balance and immune support. The following studies on Endocannabinoids and CBD can provide further details on your ECS:

What are cannabinoids?

Cannabinoids are a group of fatty compounds found in hemp and produced by other plants and the human body. They are the primary chemical compounds produced by the Cannabis plant. Tetrahydrocannabinol (THC) is the most well-known and is the ONLY psychoactive Cannabinoid. OXZGEN products are lab certified to have 0% THC.

Of the over 100 non-psychoactive Cannabinoids, Cannabidiol (CBD) is the key ingredient in OXZGEN and is the most widely known. These compounds are key players in normal immune and central nervous system function.

The system within the human body called the Endocannabinoid System (ECS) has receptors for these compounds and uses them to repair damaged cells. Cannabinoids provide a state of internal stability which is necessary for survival, despite fluctuations in our external environment.
